APPLICATION BUDGETS

Application budgets are generally limited to no more than $100,000 direct costs per year. Should the proposed research require a higher budget, the applicant should consult with the program official assigned to the parent award. The proposed budget must reflect the actual needs of the proposed project.

To provide funds for NIH grantees, applications are invited for the establishment and maintenance of a career award that will provide the initial support for a project that is not under way and is not ready for application of the research resources of the parent award. The parent award must be active when the application is submitted.

No request can exceed $200,000 in direct costs. Should the proposed research require a higher budget, the applicant should consult with the program official assigned to the parent award. The proposed budget must reflect the actual needs of the proposed project.

<td>JAMES H. ZUMBERGE FACULTY RESEARCH &amp; INNOVATION FUND EPIDEMIC &amp; VIRUS-RELATED RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT AWARD</td>
<td>$80K</td>
<td>Interdisciplinary, multi PI research is strongly encouraged, but is not a requirement. The program will not fund the same work being supported under other USC programs or external sponsors; the only exception are development proposals focused on deployments targeted for the USC community. These awards are not renewable. Applicants must be permanent, full-time USC faculty with a research profile, tenure-track, research-track, or clinical. Adjunct and visiting faculty are not eligible.</td>
